The National Motor Boat Show in Madison Square Garden Next Week. Army and navy officers and representatives of all the foreign governments at Washington have been invited to witness the opening of the Motor Boat Show in the Madison Square Garden next Monday night as guests of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers. Several hundred acceptances have already been received and as many boats and engines will be shown of the same type as used in power boats built for governmental purposes a better opportunty will be afforded than ever before the motor boat for varied purposes of

The yacht clubs will also be well represented, as the commodores of all clubs in New York locality and many from distant points have been requested to meet the military and naval delegation at the show and discuss informally engines, boats, speed properties and other topics uppermost in the minds of power boatmen.

The show committee consists of H. R. Sutphen, chairman; Eugene A. Riotte, James Craig, J. M. Truscott and W. J. Reynolds and they are arranging special features for every night of

Its intense earnestness, its profound simplicity, the nobility that make it almost a prayer, were the earnestness, the simplicity, the no of Lincoln himself. "Orators in glowing periods have drawn upon their greatest powers to magnify his virtues: historians have placed him in a niche of glory peculiarly his own; essayists have penned some of the choicest bits of literature around his illustrious name; poets, drawing from the treasure-house of imagery, have ennobled his every act, and yet in the last analysis, each and every panegyrist, like the plain mortals that read his life or hear his deeds recounted, place the true foundation of his character. "That morality ennobled the man: it ennobled every deed he performed and every word that he uttered. Moral greatness, that rarest of qualities, is the secret of Lincoln. He was too clear of sight to be blind to the great problems of his time; too earnest to be content with half solutions; too patriotic to shrink from pouring out the energies of brain and body in his country's service. H's patience never grew weary; his saving humor never failed; his love of his fellowmen, like his confidence in the all-wise Providence, was as abiding as the eternal sea. Lincoln can never be a mere memory; he must ever be warm in our imaginations and our hearts; vital in knowing the joy as well as the terrible earnestness of life. We can make virtues our own; we can aim at his moral greatness, at the truth and honesty, the justice and love and reverence which in him found a well-nigh perfect poise.
